PROF. L. F. BLAKE, of the university of Kansas, in an article on "Safety from Electricity" says: "For buildings in cities, except churches and other high structures, rods, I think, are unnecessary. Lightning seldom strikes in the cities compared with the country, one reason being that the many electric wires-telephone and telegraph and electric light-are really safe-guards. A building is safer with such wires over it than without. In the country, Lowever, buildings may need protection."

A CAREFUL estimate of the aggregate wheat crop of Great Britain fixes the amount at only 56,000,000 bushels, and it is claimed that the 38,000,000 people of the United Kingdom consume on an average six bushels per capita per annum. This makes necessary for the annual supply not much less than 230,000,-900 bushels. A shortage at once becomes apparent of not less than 175,-000,000 bushels. If the grain houses of the United Kingdom do not contain this supply then it is evident that the Britishers must look to this side of the Atlantic for bread.

CONGRESS, at its last session, voted an appropriation to the World's fair. It directed that the appropriation should be paid in money made especially for this purpose, and should be composed of five millions of silver half dol-lars, to be coined at the mint, with a special design that should commemorate the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus. The world's fair authorities are now about to receive these coins from the U. S. mint, which are offered for sale to the people at the uniform price of $1 The advance demand has been

REPORTS from Europe show that cholera has not yet been stamped out. In France and Austria the plague still has a foothold, and there is nothing to encourage the hope that the frosts will end it.
